BEGIN ERECTION OF STEEL TWO MONTHS

Preparations Now Being Made for Commencement of Actual Construction of C. P. R. High Level Bridge—Will Begin on South Side of the River

Arrangements for the erection of the steel superstructure of the C.P.R. high level bridge between Edmonton and Strathcona, which when completed will furnish railway, street car, and pedestrian traffic facilities across the Saskatchewan, are being made by George Young who has been in Strathcona since Saturday. Mr. Young is the erecting superintendent for the Canadian Bridge company at Walkerville which is furnishing the steel work for the immense structure. Previous to coming to Edmonton, Mr. Young had been supervising the erection of the Gambia street viaduct, a bridge one mile in length over Fales Creek.

Speaking to a Capital representative last evening at the Strathcona hotel, Mr. Young said that six weeks or two months will be required to prepare for the actual erection of the steel. Eight thousand tons of girders, posts and brace rods are to be shipped from the manufacturers. Of this material about 70 tons are in the yards at Strathcona having come during the past month in forty carloads. Other twenty-carloads of timber to be used in the false work which will support the steel during construction operations also have arrived in Strathcona.

"With the curve in the south end of the bridge and the special steel work required to support the approaches to the traffic deck as it crosses the valley, the heavy work of putting together the steel superstructure will be somewhat complicated," said Mr. Young. "Compared with the bridge erected at the C.P.R. viaduct at Lethbridge was a simple task. In this bridge it will be a matter of erecting ten feet after ten feet and the method of erecting will be practically the same as in the case of the viaduct. There will be no long spans in the Saskatchewan bridge. The bridge is a truss bridge constructed to meet the conditions of the work. As it is erected it will be carried on trestles to its place. The crane will be shipped from Walkerville and will be used in the erection of the bridge. It will have two booms, each of which will be eighty-five feet in length and capable of lifting twenty-five tons of steel. As it is moved forward it will raise the steel girders into their place."

There is about one year's work to be done on the bridge," said Mr. Young. "Not a single girder will be put into place until everything is in readiness to carry the whole weight through to completion, and it should take no more than six weeks to get the steel in place. The traveling crane has just arrived and after it gets here some time will be required to set it up. There are bank loads to be built for the work, offices for the engineers and other buildings to be erected. Blacksmith and machine shop, the forty men will be required on the work right from the start and when the work of erecting steel commences the force will be increased to nearly 100 men. Our own engineers and foremen have come from across Walkerville. The structural iron workers will come when they are required. We never have any difficulty in getting labor. Every worker will be employed following up the traveling crane and there will be about twenty-five men at work on the steel as it is being put into place. Ten men will be kept busy sorting out and keeping track of the thousands of steel pieces bring on the bank."

"No time will be lost in connection with the work," said Mr. Young. "We are here for our health. Labor is expensive and time is worth money to us. Every effort will be put forth to have the job completed at as early a date as possible."

Mr. Young superintended the construction work on the Gambia bridge which carries the G.T.P. railway over the Saskatchewan east of Edmonton. The Canadian Bridge company which he represents has secured the contract for the erection of the Quebec bridge.

The ceremony was performed by Mayor Mitchell, assisted by Commissioner Graves. The mayor said that the laying of the first Alberta asphalt was an era of commercial and industrial development which was destined eventually to convert the rich mineral territory to northern Alberta into one of the great manufacturing areas of the continent. He was given to understand that the asphalt in the north was superior to anything in the world. It marked the commencement of coming to street paving. He was glad of it.

WOMEN QUIT WORK TO AID THE MEN

(Canadian Associated Press)
Montreal, Nov. 23.—Three hundred and fifty employees of H. Kellert and sons, wholesale clothiers, went on strike this afternoon, owing to the refusal of the company to allow the men to use the elevator to the seventh story of the building on the corner of St. Hubert and St. Catherine streets. Mr. Kellert occupying the top story of the St. Catherine street building, issued an order allowing the girls to use the elevator, but forbidding the men to run up stairs to work, claiming that they were strong enough to climb. The girls have refused to use the elevator unless the same privilege be accorded to the men and this afternoon the trouble culminated in a general strike. The employees are all unionists and claim to be strongly organized. They have pickets out and are surrounding the building. Tomorrow, they probably seek a conference and a compromise is expected.

DR. CLARK DISCLOSES THE CANADIAN NAVY

Defends Policy of Laurier Government in Laying Foundation of a Defensive Fleet—Munk Begins Speech in Reply, But Has Not Yet Touched on Naval Issue

(Western Associated Press)
Ottawa, Nov. 23.—Dr. Clark of Red Deer in his speech in the debate today referring to the announcement of the Minister of Marine that the tender force for the Canadian navy would not be awarded because the cost was so great and because they would become obsolete so soon, said he knew of no way to get a navy review of two years ago one hundred and forty-four ships were in line, more than twice as many as the navy had at present. He said that he would have a navy built to build ships and build again as they became obsolete. Canada must do the same. If she would have a navy, she would have a navy. The amendment he described as being unprecedented. He said that if Sir Wilfrid had had ground in Quebec it was his own fault. There were several interruptions including a coup by the ex-crowder. Other speeches were made by Mr. MacKenzie, of Cape Breton, and Mr. Foster, of Knap, N.S. Amendment to Railway Act. When the House opened, Mr. Turner (Assiniboia) introduced an amendment to the railway act requiring railways to submit to the railway commission all special tariffs, and also now exempt from that court's scrutiny as well as the regular tariffs which go to the railway commission now as a matter of course. Mr. Barnard (Victoria) rose on a question of privilege to call attention of the House to a recent article in Toronto Saturday Night, which stated that while labor in the coal mines was lazy, was not as good as the Chinese while the labor organizations were in the hands of crooks and dynamiters. The speaker strongly reprimanded this and said he could not let it pass in silence. The speaker of British Columbia was as good as in the world, and the labor leaders there had a high sense of responsibility. He asked Hon. Mr. Groulx, Minister of Labor, if he had anything in his department bearing on this matter. Mr. Groulx said he had not. He believed as Mr. Barnard did that the white labor of British Columbia was as good as anywhere, and the labor leaders were conscientious men. Regarding Daily Coal. Attention to a special number of the Canada Gazette containing a proclamation replacing on December 6th the duty on soft coal west of the lake. The duty was temporarily raised during the western coal strike. Had the government, he asked, any intention of the effect that the west had not a sufficient coal supply. Hon. Mr. Munk asked that the question be placed over in absence of the Minister of Customs from the House.

MISS MARY K. CHAMBERLAIN, of Lincoln Center, Kansas, who was tarred and feathered by a mob there, is now languishing in the penitentiary.

METHODS OF THE FAMOUS OIL KING

Washington, Nov. 23.—Alfred Merritt of Duluth, Minn., 3rd president of the Duluth, Missoula and Northern railroad, who styled himself a "lumber-jack," unacquainted with the methods of the "money trust" told the house, steel trust investigating committee today that through loans of less than $1,000,000 from John D. Rockefeller, he had lost his holdings in the Missoula Iron Mine and the railroad properties now owned by the United States Steel Corporation and estimated to be worth today as high as $700,000,000. Merritt and his brother, Leonida Merritt, who will testify to morrow were among the original mine owners in the Lake Superior region and part owners and builders of the Duluth, Missoula and Northern railroad. The elder Merritt declared he was indebted through F. D. Fales, Mr. Rockefeller's secretary, in charge of his charitable work, to put up all his collateral for loans from Mr. Rockefeller in 1892 and 1893. One loan was for $420,000. Others were for various sums.

Gates, he said, was a "st. practitioner" in whom he had confidence and who assured him that by plying a railroad, he would be protected and that he would be taken care of. The witness related how, two months later he had paid the $420,000 loan with Mr. Rockefeller, during the panic of 1893 Rockefeller called the loan, giving him time to raise $420,000 that being unable to raise the money, he and his brother lost their property. He admitted that Mr. Rockefeller offered him an opportunity to buy his property back within a year, but he declined that the oil kings told him "to keep hands off" and that he was unable to raise money anywhere.

Dispute as to the nature of the transaction arose when D. A. Reid, counsel for the United States Steel Corporation stated that the Merritts had made actual sales of their stock holdings to Rockefeller in 1893, to raise money, and that they never had taken advantage of the opportunity to repurchase within a year. Another brother, Mr. Reid, declared he had redeemed his stock and secured his property in 1894, at $200 per share when it was taken over by the time of the organization of the United States Steel Corporation. The introduction of Mr. Rockefeller's name in this manner almost resulted in the issuance of a subpoena against him for him to appear before the committee with the contract made at the time of the Merritt loans. Reid, however, moved that this be done. No objections were heard when Chairman Stanley put the motion, but the committee decided later in the afternoon session not to call Mr. Rockefeller until Legation Merritt had testified.

CLAIMED SALARY
OF $5,000 YEAR

CHIEF JUSTICE DISMISSES SUIT
BROUGHT AGAINST FRANCO-CANADIAN.

Wyllie Joseph E. Laurence was entitled to the salary of $5,000 a year, which he claimed as his due for a couple of years' service, as general manager of the Franco-Canadian Mortgage Company. He was paid for the first five months of $75 a month for the first fifteen months and $100 a month for the ensuing 18, represented the salary owing to him, was a question which Chief Justice Harvis, in the case of Wyllie Joseph E. Laurence et al. v. Franco Canadian Mortgage Co., decided on this morning. His heretofore dismissed the claim brought by Mr. Laurence, and the court, in its decision, estimated his net worth at $100,000, less, 25, $75 received on account.

He was paid a salary from September 1, 1907, to August 31, 1909. To this claim for a total of 28 $75's, the court added 18 $100's, and found Mr. Laurence was the shareholder in the mortgage company and that in consequence of this he was to take the general management for the time being as the business of the company was to be carried on without the employment of a man whose whole time could be devoted to the work. The court found that Mr. Laurence had paid himself out of the funds of the company at the rate of $75 a month from September 1, 1907 until January 1, 1909.

Then he gave himself an increase of $25 a month.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 22.—News from the stranded steamer Prinz Joachim, which ran on the rocks on Atwood Key, a remote island of the Bahamas, yesterday, was leaking early today. Wireless operators in this city are unable to get into communication with boats because of the interference of other aerial messages. Officials of the Hamburg-American line say that the 18 passengers, including women and children, are in no danger as the steamer Garancia, of the Ward line, was standing by the Joachim last night ready to tranship the passengers.

New coal properties are being opened up at Taber, Alta., by the Superior Coal company, which when developed and placed on a producing basis will mean a considerable addition to the present coal supply of the Canadian West. The company has coal rights over more than 5,000 acres of the best coal lands in the district, carrying a tonnage of 25,000,000 tons of coal. A spur track is being laid to the mines which is expected to be completed early next spring. The mines will then be producing about 1000 tons of coal per day.

WILL AUGMENT COAL SUPPLY OF ALBERTA

New coal properties are being opened up at Taber, Alta., by the Superior Coal Company, which developed and placed on a producing basis will mean a considerable addition to the present coal supply of the Canadian West. The company has coal rights over about three 5,000-acre of the best coal lands in the district, carrying a tonnage of 25,000,000 tons of coal. A spur track is being laid to the mines which is expected to be completed early next spring. The mines will then be producing about 1600 tons of coal per day.

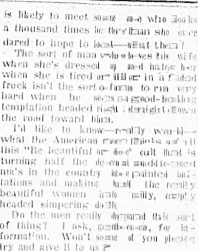

Will her afflicted family look at each other and wonder where they are going to get strength to endure her till she comes to her senses.

The first year she was married she's usually worse than now. George likes couldn't bear her in broad lewis, or George couldn't love her in a kimoné. But when the first baby came she begins to show signs of returning to reason, and by the time she and George have washed the floor with Son and helped daughter through the measles and fought it all out about whose "friends" are the hardest to stand, she usually thinks about something and somebody besides herself and her looks, and then, and not till then, she is worth one-half the money it takes to keep her hair dresser and manicurer paid.

And now comes this fool play preaching the doctrine that the thing for daughter to do is to keep up the pose business as long as she lives or George will stop loving her right away, so there. Well, what if he does?

"This love doesn't amount to much, anyhow. He really doesn't care for her at all. All he wants is a lay figure to hang some pretty clothes on. He doesn't love daughter at all. He loves daughter's clothes and daughter's pretty ribbons and daughter's high-heeled shoes. And just as daughter thinks she has earned his deathless devotion by going without proper hunchions to buy a corset that will make her over into the 'smart' figure George ave him find me in a dowdy wrapper," men from one of the latest dramatic successes. If men are really such one-gumps as they are always trying to make each other out to be? Here's the whole play built on the "Look pretty, please" theme. It's a little bit of a cliche—and it's a success, too. Is it possible the men really don't want a tall, lithe, slender, young woman with a good leg or clever, witty, or interesting, or devoted, or anything like on earth or not—just so long as she looks like a girl?

The average girl spends over half her time, energy and nerve force trying to look to keep pretty. She spends every waking hour of her life trying to get to it mildly—buying puffs and curls and rats, and high heels, and powdered and complexion lotions, and remedies for her hair to make it grow, and stuff like that. She uses her hands to make them into claws, and struts and poses and "affects this" and tries to "look like that,"

Noted Irish Publicist Deplores Carson's Attitude on Home Rule

Lord Dunraven Declares that Home Rule Party Is Loyal to Throne and Constitution and that Granting of Self-Government Will Strengthen Bonds

(By Timothy J. O'Connor.)

Dublin, Nov. 22.—In a letter just published Lord Dunraven strongly protests against "the assumption by Sir Edward Carson and other militant Unionists of the expression loyalty for their own exclusive use."

"I am a Federalist," writes Lord Dunraven, "and therefore a Home Ruler, or a Home Ruler and therefore a Federalist—it matters not which. I have lived under three, and have served under two Sovereigns, and in doing so to the Crown I will not give right of way to any man. That the Unionist views I hold are at variance with loyalty to the throne and the constitution I absolutely deny, and in that denial I am not speaking merely for myself. The sentiment of Dublin has been made manifest."

"If His Majesty can find time and opportunity to go about among his people in Ireland, additional proof will be lacking of the personal devotion of those who not only believe that Home Rule is compatible with loyalty, but who hold that true loyalty will find its best expression in labors for such constitutional reconstruction as is necessary for the preservation of our institutions, including the crown, and who are convinced that amendment of the Act of Union is an essential and inseparable part of constitutional reform."

"The mental attitude of the stalwarts in the north-east corner of Ireland is difficult to understand. They refuse to stand for law and order. They express passionate devotion to an adjective which, with equal passion and far more sense, they denounce as ridiculously weak and ineffectual. They are not law and order. They demand their law-abiding character and their loyalty to the constitution, and they are not provincial government, and declaring that they will resist the will of the people of the United Kingdom if it does not coincide with their will."

"The Provisional Committee of Public Safety proposes, after the manner of a belligerent state, to demonstrate by despatching Sir Edward Carson the head of its forces on a march from Belfast to Cork. Sir Edward Carson is a man of war, but he is also a man of law. Which side of his character will prevail? He professes that his efforts are to be directed to a 'crucious assertion' of right; but he must, I think, feel that the march of his irreconcilables through the length of Ireland is not unlikely to be provocative, even under his wise leadership, of regrettable incidents and breaches of the peace; and it will be difficult, for even his acute and trained intellect, to show how much an operation, organized by a Provisional Committee, differs in any material respect from stark rebellion and civil war."

Attitude Deplorable.
"This unconstitutional belligerent attitude assumed by Unionists is deeply to be deplored. A reasoned presentation of their case, and some discussion as to whether they cannot be safeguarded against the evils they dread, and whether their fears are not unfounded, would be constitutional, wise, and fruitful. Mere loud assertion, 'We won't because we won't,' will not answer their purpose; but it will inflame passions, excite judgment, render peaceable solution of a great question unnecessarily difficult, and delay the accomplishment of the one object upon which the efforts of all Constitutionalists should be concentrated—reconstruction and the maintenance of a Double Chamber system."

"There has never been anything in Irish politics like the extraordinarily sudden collapse of Sir Edward Carson. He was a partial success at Gravelton, outside Belfast. In Dublin, on Tuesday night last he was a most dismal failure. To some extent, however, it was not his own fault. He did not get up to speak until all the local, legal, and other important persons had said their say. One of them was Sir Henry Blake, who declared that Ireland, if she was to change her status in the Empire, could only be on the one hand a Crown Colony, or on the other an independent State, like New Zealand or Australia. Sir Henry proved himself to be a real Colonial by mixing up dates and facts in regard to the Irish question in the most amusing way. He referred, for instance, to the Eighty Club as the Ninety-five Club."

A Recognized Leader.
All this, however, is of very little consequence in comparison with the position of Sir Edward Carson, who is now the recognized leader of the Unionists of Ireland. Who does Sir Edward Carson represent? Certainly not the laborers, the artisans, the farmers or the workmen of Ireland. Neither does he represent the Unionists of the South and West of Ireland. That is clear from the content of the Unionist "Irish Times" on his speech. That paper, which is conducted with great ability in the interest of the Unionist cause, gives Sir Edward the "go-by" in the most polite manner imaginable."

The fact is that the business men of Dublin do not want any heroics in regard to Home Rule. A considerable number of them are opposed to such a measure, but as in the case of Belfast, very few of them attended Sir Edward Carson's meeting. The meeting, too, although it was undoubtedly large, was a fiasco. Nobody seemed to bother about any of the speakers, and Sir Edward Carson's speech fell on unlistening ears. The whole thing was a farce, and strange to say, that position is acknowledged by the leading Unionist paper, the "Irish Times." The fact is that in Dublin Unionism is practically dead, and that on Tuesday night Sir Edward Carson was conscious of the fact, and that, instead of being at a christening, he was officiating at a very sad funeral."

In this speech Sir Edward attempted to emphasize the following points:
That the experience of recent years views of the quick-change artists. In conclusion Sir Edward declared there must be no mistake as to Unionist. Unionist would accept Home Rule under any conditions whatever. He suggested that the Unionists of the southern provinces should initiate Ulster, and appoint a representative commission which would co-operate with the commission in Ulster, and aid and make suggestions in their own best interests.

No steps, however, have been taken towards carrying out Sir Edward's wishes and his propaganda appears to be falling pretty flat.

Indian Passenger Season Will Be One of Unusual Activity

Ocean Traffic Will Be Augmented by Passengers to Indian Durbars by Way of Suez Canal—Panama Canal Will Revolutionize Commerce of the World

(By W. Hamilton Rhodes)
London, Nov. 22.—It is remarkable how little difference has been made to the course of the passenger trade with the canal. It is as well to say, for the period of the year is so important, so far as outward traffic through the Suez Canal is concerned. The Indian passenger season, which may be said to have already begun, is expected to present heavier bookings than usual, as a view of the Durbar at Calcutta.

Despite the heavy season in the tropics and the fact that the Indian passenger season, which may be said to have already begun, is expected to present heavier bookings than usual, as a view of the Durbar at Calcutta.

ship companies acquainted with the trade of the Pacific coast, it is to be expected that the Indian passenger season will be one of unusual activity. The Suez waterway, while, too, the Suez Canal is expected to present heavier bookings than usual, as a view of the Durbar at Calcutta.

Cost of Having.
Professor A. H. Bowley, of the London School of Economics, is a distinguished authority on statistical matters. He has been interviewed regarding the cost of having, and the results are as follows: The cost of having, in the case of the Suez Canal, is expected to be one of unusual activity.

Missionary Reports Cooked.
Dr. Evans, who has spent many years in India, said at a Free Church Council meeting recently that the results of his mission work in India are "cooked," so that the public may be induced to continue their contributions.

Mission System.
The whole system of missionary work in India requires revising. Christianity is introduced to the Indian in European style, and the Hindu is treated as a barbarian. Many Indians have complained that Jesus Christ is pictured to them in a top hat and frock coat, instead of a turban and sandals.

Christians Don't Trust.
It is a well-known fact in India that Christian servants are not to be trusted, though there are exceptions. They are not as faithful and honest as Mohammedans and Hindus, and if a native is seen drinking it is ten to one that he is a Christian. In fact, Mohammedans and Hindus are treacherous from religious convictions.

THREE WISHES

(By Frances L. Garfield.)

The little empress from Fairy Land with his wish pack on his back stood in the centre of the table around which were seated Lysander John Appleton, his wife and their daughter, Daisy Mayne.

"Three wishes each," he said, "and because I know the human heart I will let each of you make one of those wishes as secret that which men and women gather, in print, or on the doorstep, to wish for, doesn't represent the real longing of the heart. Daisy the Wish Fairy knows the heart wish."

Because Daisy Mayne is the youngest and these are the times when the youngest are considered first, she was given her first selection of the wishes. "I wish first," she said, "for some one to love me; it is because without anyone in this wide world loving me, Lysander John and his wife looked at each other, at surviving amazement from the hour when Daisy Mayne arrived that had devoted their hearts and their lives to loving her; they had loved her for all she was, for all they believed her to be. They had loved her because they had loved her for her own sake, and they had loved her even more when and proven unworthy. And here she was wishing for someone to love her; she was someone without love, she said."

Selfishness of Youth.
"The selfishness of youth," sighed her father.

"She will not realize the value of parental love but she has now, and she has a husband given," said the mother.

"I wish first," she said, "for some one to love me; it is because without anyone in this wide world loving me, Lysander John and his wife looked at each other, at surviving amazement from the hour when Daisy Mayne arrived that had devoted their hearts and their lives to loving her; they had loved her for all she was, for all they believed her to be. They had loved her because they had loved her for her own sake, and they had loved her even more when and proven unworthy. And here she was wishing for someone to love her; she was someone without love, she said."

She had to repeat her wish, for the last wish had been the wish that arose from her parents' hearts.

Then, looking out into the dark as he looked down at the little girl, he thought that his heart was beating a little more and softly, she made her third wish. It was the secret wish of her heart: "I wish," she whispered, "that the Prince, my father, would find out the husband made at his birth and could for me and take me to his castle. It is a plan that one of such royal appearance as I cannot be the child of such a low-looking man and such a dowdy-looking woman as those who pass for my father and mother. I know in my heart I belong to a royal house, and some wicked person told me when I was sleeping in my cradle."

Lapses, in fairy tales, in real life, are kind and it never fails to the lot of parents to know the secret wish of a selfish child. For this wish they are spared let them be truly thankful.

"My wishes are brief," said Miss Appleton with a sigh, "and I have a wish that is secret. I wish health for my children, happiness for my children, and wealth for my children."

John's Wish.
Daisy Mayne's wishes were for her self, and her mother was very frank to say: "Lysander John looked as bewildered as a child who is invited to a party and finds no place set for him at the table."

"My first wish," he said, "trying to control the frenzied stop in his voice, 'is that my daughter and I wish to be true. My second wish is that my wife may have all she wishes for and more.'"

A few minutes later when he had walked out in a dejected way to prepare for bed, he remembered he hadn't made the Secret Wish.

"I will not be in a hurry to make it," he said. "The granting of that wish may mean much to my eternal happiness and peace of mind. In the morning I will be less repressed and may give to such a weighty matter the consideration it merits."

Three minutes later, he realized that his inspiration had come. Looking at his palms, he said, as one making a wish one had often made before, and which had always brought with it a sense of hopelessness and futility: "I wish I had one pair of palms with the buttons sewed on."

COAST HINDUS WANT WIVES AND VOTES

(Western Associated Press.) Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 23.—In an effort to have removed the present immigration restriction of "continuous journey," three Vancouver and Victoria Hindus have left for Ottawa to interview the department in the hope that the wives and children of British Columbia Hindus may hereafter be permitted to enter the Pacific coast province. The Hindus have urged various organizations of Vancouver and other cities to support a two-fold proposal, in effect, "Give us our wives and give us votes," which in some quarters has been endorsed. But at one time the question was asked, "Which wife?" the contention being urged that polygamy was common with many Hindus in India. The association at whose instance the question was raised says that in their opinion the Hindu moral grounds are well worth admission.

Photographers Face Manslaughter Charge

Sequel to Tragedy of Some Months Ago on Trial in Red Deer Court.

(Special to The Capital.) Red Deer, Nov. 23.—Nov. 23.—Trial of Neine and Louie, the traveling photographers who are charged with manslaughter in connection with the tragedy of a few months ago when the businessman Melrod was killed by the explosion of a trunk on the station platform here, opened yesterday afternoon before Mr. Justice Smart. Several witnesses were called and the case for the crown was well advanced when the court adjourned last evening. This morning the last crown witness was placed upon the stand, and the defense opened.

The businessman of Red Deer was the first witness called yesterday. He said that on October 11, the two accused men had come to him in the station at Red Deer and requested the privilege of opening their baggage which consisted of a small trunk. To this he consented and they took from it material for their photographic work up town. Later in the day they returned and requested that their trunk be rechecked to Lacombe. They themselves placed it on the truck for loading into the train which arrived at that moment at the station.

The next witness was the assistant baggage man at Lacombe who helped with unloading the baggage. Upon the arrival of the train at Lacombe he said he had taken a small black canvas trunk and another trunk into the baggage room where the deceased Melrod preceded him with a larger trunk. He then placed the black trunk on top of another one and a very short time later the deceased Melrod had pulled the black trunk off the other one as it hit the floor the explosion occurred, injuring seriously both Melrod and him. He had but faint recollection of what afterwards occurred until he found himself in the hospital.

Had Talk With Melrod. Mr. Jackson, station agent at Lacombe, said that night after the explosion and had had a talk with him during the conversation Melrod had told him that it was the black trunk which had exploded. This evidence was admitted after a somewhat lengthy objection on the part of Mr. McInnis, counsel for the accused, who claimed that it was not admissible unless Melrod had given up all hope of recovery and knew he was away at the time he made the statement. The evidence in this connection was given of his having used the expressions that he guessed he was all right and that he did not think he would pull through before his statements and on the strength of this evidence was submitted.

Shortly after this conversation Melrod died from the effects of the injuries he had received.

Accused Prepared to Go. Staff sergeant Parker of the R.N.W.M.P. was then put on the stand and said he had come to Lacombe on the midnight train from Strathcona arriving in Lacombe at about four o'clock on the morning after the explosion. On (Western Associated Press.) Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 23.—The first blizzard of the season struck Winnipeg tonight, following a spell of extremely mild weather. For about two days there was hardly any frost and the morning result of the frost was the loosening of anchors at the Lake Division Power Plant of the Winnipeg electric railway company, which had to shut down tonight. The light service was kept up by the Auxiliary plant but the cars were stopped. The thermometer dropped quickly tonight and a 21-mile an hour east wind with snow gusted for three hours. It is general all over the province and in Saskatchewan.

COAL HANDLING PROBLEM AT THE EDMONTON PLANT

Is Not Denied That Present System Is an Antiquated One—How the Fires Are Fed at the Power House

No particular feature of the power plant—not even the Inlet pump—has received more severe criticism from officials and laymen of the city than the method of handling coal. Alderman Thomas Bellamy says: "It is antiquated." Alderman T. M. Grimley says: "It is a laughing stock." Other officials have applied various epithets—ranging from "antiquated" to "laughing stock"—to this coal handling system or more correctly speaking, lack of system.

In view of so much criticism, it is of interest to know just how coal is really handled and what steps, if any, are being taken and have been taken, to extract this thorn in the flesh.

Edmonton buys its coal from local mines, buying it shipped to the city by train. The cars are placed on a spur track owned by the city. The coal is delivered in box cars, cattle cars and almost any kind of car available. When a train of coal is placed upon the switch the task presents itself of getting that coal from the car into the furnace.

In order to have on hand a reserve quantity of coal is shovelled out of the cars and hauled in carts and deposited in a pile adjacent to the power plant. As a safeguard against train breaks, strikes and acts of God, or acts of anybody or anything else, that might interfere with coal delivery, it is prudent to have from one week to ten days supply of coal on hand. For some days this reserve has been used to a considerable extent. It is impossible to once deposit the reserve and permit it to remain there constantly for the reason that this coal sticks and after lying out exposed to the weather for a few months it would deteriorate to a great extent. Hence, it is profitable to utilize it and deposit more for the reserve every so often.

The city has no coal bunkers in which to dump the coal and then load it on the cars, by merely opening the gate to a chute and permitting gravity to do the rest. The question of building bunkers is at this time under consideration by the administration and, naturally, this reserve stock has been shovelled into cars and hauled to the furnace room or to the hopper feeding the coal conveyor.

Coal fed to the furnaces from the cars into carts and hauled to the bunkers where it is dumped. A chute is used to take the coal to the furnace. A string of men with wheelbarrows were employed to convey this fuel.

One of the things that has been done since Mr. Commissioner Bellamy was elected, has been the placing in commission of this coal conveyor. This conveyor helps quite a bit, but it eliminates the necessity of wheelbarrows and the men who were employed to convey this fuel. Instead, the coal is dumped into a hopper which supplies the conveyor. The conveyor is a long coal up overhead and eventually deposits it in convenient spots where the furnace doors where located. This hopper helps quite a bit, but it eliminates the necessity of wheelbarrows and the men who were employed to convey this fuel. Instead, the coal is dumped into a hopper which supplies the conveyor. The conveyor is a long coal up overhead and eventually deposits it in convenient spots where the furnace doors where located.

Since the present coal conveyor is in operation, the necessity of having a reserve quantity of coal on hand is eliminated. The coal is delivered in box cars, cattle cars and almost any kind of car available. When a train of coal is placed upon the switch the task presents itself of getting that coal from the car into the furnace.

To eliminate the necessity of shovelling coal from the cars, the city has decided to build a reserve quantity of coal on hand. The coal is delivered in box cars, cattle cars and almost any kind of car available. When a train of coal is placed upon the switch the task presents itself of getting that coal from the car into the furnace.

Either overhead bunkers will be put up so coal will come down by gravity, or a low bunker will be built from which coal will be carried to the conveyor. Whether it be a crane from overhead bunkers or conveyor from a low down bunker, the coal will be deposited in the present hopper and from the time it leaves the hopper until it reaches the furnace fire, it will not be touched. But even if the coal is in bunkers the question of dampness presents itself. If the material would provide damp cars even under present conditions much labor would be saved. It is the intention of the administration to ask the railway companies to require the railroad company to supply dump cars.

About the only place that coal is being used today at the plant is in taking fuel to the gas plant. This plant does not utilize much coal and considering the amount consumed it is considered that it would not pay to install any automatic device to supply this unit. It would not pay under the present circumstances, but unless the supply to this unit were being considered in connection with a scheme to automatically supply the entire plant, then the gas plant might be added. However, the growth of the power plant has been by degrees, and it is made as the city required. Hence the power plant has been built by degrees and by recommendations of various superintendents and commissioners.

Were the city entirely without a power plant and were it built on the ground up, the conditions would be entirely different and a question would be worked out to provide for the entire works. A set of new boilers is at this time being installed. Automatic firing of these is being provided.

That the methods of handling coal at the present time at the power plant is antiquated, is not denied. Those in power are remedying it. That it has not been remedied before is another one of those mistakes of the past being felt at the present. And the situation at the power plant is no different from the situation all over the city. Edmonton is growing faster than the administration can provide for its needs.

SHOULD NOT ACCEPT COAL MEN'S OFFER

DEALERS ARE ONLY ACTUATED BY FEAR OF COMBINE SAYS COMMISSIONER HOTCHKISS.

"Essentially vicious in principle," according to Chas. S. Hotchkiss, public utility commissioner for the province, is the proposal made by local coal men who offer to sell 100 tons of coal to the city to relieve the present shortage.

In discussing the situation with the Capital this morning Commissioner Hotchkiss declared that the acceptance of the companies' proposals would be an entirely unjustifiable proceeding. "That the men who had refused to sell coal to local consumers should come forward with an offer to sell 100 tons to the municipality, merely for the purpose of keeping out competition from the south, was the height of impudence." "Prices have been held up," said Commissioner Hotchkiss, and the consumer has been unable to obtain any relief; he has found it well-nigh impossible to obtain coal at any price. Only when there appeared to be some prospect of relief, some prospect that the northern coalmen's monopoly would be broken, did these people come through with an offer to sell the municipality 1000 tons of coal. For my own part I would rather pay $5 a ton more for imported coal, under the circumstances, than buy the local product. Were the council to accept the offer which has been made to them, the difficulties of the situation would be aggravated, not simplified.

Since the present coal conveyor is in operation, the necessity of having a reserve quantity of coal on hand is eliminated. The coal is delivered in box cars, cattle cars and almost any kind of car available. When a train of coal is placed upon the switch the task presents itself of getting that coal from the car into the furnace.

KUBELIK PLEASES A CROWDED HOUSE

One of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences that ever crowded into the Empire theatre greeted Jan Kubelik, the great Bohemian virtuoso last night, at what was probably the most successful musical event ever witnessed in Edmonton. For the spell of Kubelik's witchery was upon the entire audience and when it was all over one lady was heard to murmur "how beautiful" and she just about expressed the feelings of everyone present.

As the dark gentile eyed Bohemian stepped upon the stage the audience saw a face upon every instrument of which was stamped the soul of music. His bearing, moreover, was so truly modest as to be positively refreshing.

After Mr. Ludwig Salvator, a most excellent accompanist had finished the lengthy prelude to Vieuxtemps' Concerto in D minor, Kubelik played and the audience recognized by the first glorious notes that a treat was in store for them. Sustained tones of sonority had never been heard here before and it is doubtful if the great "Sax" himself ever excelled them. In the second movement of this beautiful concerto, Kubelik showed his wonderful artistic temperament which as a boy protégé he was thought unlikely to develop and he lost himself entirely in the hymn-like theme and wondrous melody which dominates this movement.

LONDON WOMAN IS BITTEN BY TARANTULA

(Western Associated Press.)
London, Nov. 23.—Miss Connor, sister of Mr. J. A. Connor, grocer of Richmond street north, was seriously bitten by a huge tarantula while handling bananas in her brothers store this afternoon.

The pain was excruciating for a time, the insect's fang entered under the skin, starting about the side of the finger rather than directly onto the flesh averting more serious consequences.

A physician cauterized the wound. The spider clung to Miss Connor's finger until knocked off by a gentleman. It measured about four inches in diameter and two inches in height.

COSMOPOLITAN AND DICKENS. Charles Dickens is still the "best seller." Publishers don't argue nor can they over his books—they keep on ordering new editions of paper, old and new, and let them speed out. And it has been forty years since, one morning when the yard was filled with scarlet geraniums and the breath of symphonies was heavy in the air, the great author followed little Nell. Now that the centenary of his birth (February 7, 1812) approaches, and everybody is thinking of Dickens. We have secured several titles which will tell many things about him that have hitherto been unknown. In the January Cosmopolitan, his son, Alfred Tennyson Dickens, will tell you of his own personal recollections of the great novelist. Later, probably in February, Mary Angela Dickens, his granddaughter, will give an intimate view of Dickens, as she remembers him. In fact, in these and other titles on Dickens which will follow—fully illustrated of course—we shall aim to give you a more vivid picture than has yet been published of the human—the home—side of the great master, written by those who knew him best. Read the articles—they will stir you to a new interest in the "best beloved" author in your library. Subscriptions to Cosmopolitan will be accepted until December 5, at the special low rate of Canada $1.50. Cosmopolitan Agency Box 854, Winnipeg.

Twelve Hundred Lots Go Under Hammer Tomorrow

Strathcona Realty to Be Sold at Auction to Meet Taxes as Yet Unpaid—Anticipated That Bidding Will Be Very Keen—Some Snaps to Be Picked Up

Strathcona, Nov. 23.—At the city hall tomorrow morning commencing at 10 o'clock, twelve hundred lots go under the auctioneer's hammer for arrears of taxes. Never before has Strathcona witnessed such a scene as given promise of, although it is one which has threatened for the past four years. In spite of remarkable heavy payments for the redemption of lands since the sale was formally authorized, the annual still owing and for which the lands will be sold tomorrow reaches to over $18,000.

Assessor James Fairweather will handle the auctioneer's hammer tomorrow, as he has been selected by the city council. At the sale it is expected there will be present a large crowd of investors, who no doubt, secured many snags since much of the property is choice suburban land and worth many times more than the amount or arrears.

It is known that many prospective buyers from both sides of the river have been awaiting this sale with the intention of making heavy purchases and bidding will undoubtedly be keen for many of the properties.

The fact that provision is made for permitting delinquent owners to redeem their property within one year after the sale will suffice to return many of these lots to their original owners. The majority of the advertised lots are located some distance out from the central portion of the city and the list is similar to last year. The inclusion of some entire subdivisions. Naturally these blocks will be redeemed during the year which is allowed for this purpose.
